The flowering shrubs are beautiful, and the large aloe, in full flower, is a noble plant. Tortola is a very beautiful island. Mr. Georges says he saves four thousand a year by residing on the spot.

Fort Royal, Martinique,

I have just landed from the Danish brig. We went to Montserrat, where Mr, T. Meade and the gentlemen of the island received me with great hospitality. I like its locale wonderfully, especially Streatham (Meade's house), which is surrounded by romantic scenery, and as temperate as Madeira.

[The intervening letters are missing.]

Port of Spain, Trinidad, July gth.

As the town is hot, and reckoned not so unwholesome as the country, I have taken a small cottage, consisting of a hall and three bed-chambers, on the crown of a hill, and a mile and a half from the town, across a plain half-environed by woody mountains, and commanding the most beautiful prospect in the world, for the range of hills con-